INTRODUCTION

The black and white child of today must be willing to forsake the bitter, unforgiving and abusive teachings of their forefathers against one another conveyed throughout history. They must unitedly envision a harmonious, prosperous and generous South Africa. It will call for them to gather together, to pray together, to forgive one another and to work together to achieve what they will envision together.

This is a South Africa that is equally constitutional, equally economically and socially uplifting regardless of one's background. It celebrates the ideals taught by the unifiers that have walked on this beautiful land.

We will do business like the Indians, were we selflessly enable one another to start channel-based businesses, were we open one another's eyes to profitable business and were we hold one another accountable for economic mismanagement.

We will work hard like the black man to stir this country upward in all possible ways as we adopt the white man's efficiency and risk-taking methods. We will farm the land, graze the cattle and protect our environment from exploitation in order to achieve sustainable growth; we will have to make jointly advised decisions.

You ask? Where do we start? When can we start? We start with a conscious of oneness of mind and heart wherever we are – pursue the joy that comes with unconditional love.

Remember that most of our elders will not receive us well and that it will cost us some privileges and pleasures that once ensnared us for a time. It will require a lot of heart for this is a worthy ideal. Welcome and give all the hospitality to the pilgrims of this cause.

South Africa belongs to everybody; it is like all other land that was called into existence by the Almighty GOD of all ages. Remember that it was the pre-historic unity of our people that caused them to devise a way to build a temple towards the heavens. It was that united initiative that got God's attention so much that He divided us by giving us different languages. Therefore, it calls for us to speak one language of love, trust, unity and peace again. Unity has proven to achieve the heaven-shaking results. Unity is the fullness of God expressed.

Join me in this document as I share various ideals towards the betterment of our beloved future in our country.

Dear Tommorrow

Unite. Build. Impart. Expire.

1. Un-learning racism

It has been over 24 years of democracy in our country yet the raging fires of racial differences haven't decreased. The pretence and tolerance in this country among racial groups is depressing. Therefore it calls for as the youth to confront this epidemic that has been nursed for years.

If we can recall the innocence of our childhood and teenage years of how fascinating it was for a white and black to be best buddies prior to the poison we were fed by our parents then we do have good ground to celebrate one another and to build this nation.

How are we going to dismantle racism in our lifetime?

1. We must strive to be interracial in every way possible. Let there be a blend of all colours in all facilities, sectors and communities.
2. Regulate our media platforms to promote a united and diversified country.
3. We must teach those we can about "Oneness regardless of our external pigment".
4. We must enforce laws that punish racial injustice everywhere without any biasness.
5. Unless united love begins with us as individuals, it will not become a national agenda.

6. No political party must be registered with the IEC until there is proof of :
 - A. Multiracial, age and gender membership that is a subset of the population
 - B. Multiracial, age and gender distribution of candidates
 - C. Multiracial, age and gender distribution of executive members.
7. Pro-mono colour political parties must not see their day in our country.
8. Monitor and amend our educational policies to be in-line with our national agenda.
9. Make sure that the black man cannot do anything in this country without a white man and that the white man cannot do anything in this country without the black man.
10. Apartheid towns and townships must be invaded by tremendous multiracial development.

Pigment must not hinder partnership nor must language hinder love and loyalty. Nor must status hinder sensible servanthood. Nor must carelessness hinder credibility.

2. The law, our servant

It is not surprising that our law is centred on the teachings our colonizers and that after 24 years of democracy, we have dare tried to review it. It is also doubtfully fair for our law system to multiracially balance by reintroducing the native court.

The native court reinstates an pre-African law system incorporates African wisdom to preserve justice in the land. Of course its laws will need to be collect from the elders that remain today. Not only must professionals know Dutch and European law. They must be equipped to stand in an African court and to handle matters accordingly with applied African wisdom.

African wisdom is not very far from biblical wisdom more especially the proverbs written by King Solomon hence this is to show that God Almighty moved in Africa and lived in the hearts of our people.

Here are some multiracial laws and rights

1. Denied privilege

- A young male adult who wishes to marry a female who is not of his culture or race may do so and can be protected by the law if either or both their parents don't permit their marriage especially under no realistic and sensible reason(s). Such parents can face jail time depending on the depth of the damage made to aggrieved parties.

- A student can take any institution to court for being discriminated against and being denied entrance to the institution because of race, physical ability, culture and religion.
- A young man can take his father or mother to court for denying him the right to marry a female of his choice.
- A young man is not legally liable to pay the lobola of his own mother at any point even if such serves as a hindrance to his own marriage when traditionally viewed unless he is willing.
- A young man is not legally and traditionally liable to take the surname of his father especially when the father had carelessly abandon him unless the young man is willing but if forced , the law will intervene and the father can be arrested,

Rights

1. Interracial adoption is permitted to parentally qualifying candidates.
2. A victim of crime can choose which court of law (Native or European) he/she prefers.
3. Citizens have a right to suggest a law.
4. Citizens have a right suggest policy amendments.
5. Citizens have a right to access government financial statements.
6. Citizens have a right to hold the government accountable.
7. Citizens have a right to call for “No confidence in their presidency” and therefore under a multiracial motion to call for a “re-elections” every full year term.

3. The presidency

There must never be a time like this in our country that a president doesn't democratically appoint ministers. There is no wisdom in that at all.

How to avoid a possible civil war;

- a. If the president is a black male then the deputy president must a female of any race.
- b. The appointment of ministers must be a subset of the whole population; it must reflect the genders, races, physical ability and the languages.
- c. Appoint ministers that have track records of credible leadership administration and not by individual favour.

The advisory of the incoming presidency must be made up of a subset of the population (Genderly, racially and religiously balanced).

4. The criteria for NPO's

We have failed to regulate NPO's especially religious organisations. The monitoring of religious organisations is essential in creating a moral-based society. Why do we excel in shutting down illegal taverns, clubs and colleges yet fail to shut down non-profit religious organisations are a polluting our society.

We must:

- a. Shutdown religious organisations that have misrepresented beliefs and practises that contrast the very principle belief they claim to uphold.
- b. Divisive religious organisation in denominations must be shutdown.
- c. If there is no unity and concordance among organizations that belong to the same religion, the state must not recognize that religion in its constitution as it contrasts with our national multiracial agenda.
- d. All non-profit organisations must enforce the national agenda of "One nation people"
- e. All non-profit organisations must present financial statements as per compliance.

5. Educational system

Our educational system is colonistic and inflexible and will cause our economy to grow at a snail's pace because of a lack of creative manpower in our sectors.

What can we do to improve our educational system?

- A. Every student must undertake a "Talent assessment", so that we don't waste time and resources. This "Talent assessment" will help us channel resources in the interests of the student's talent and to reap economic efficiency in the near future. Furthermore, this "Talent assessment" will help to gauge the manpower we have as a country.
- B. Recognize and endorse gifted students in our country. We must have a 24/7 talent search streaming from our parliamentary.
- C. We must certify and recognize informally acquired skills so that more SMME's can trade in the formal sector thus encouraging a better circulation of our economy.
- D. Kill the stigma that "Science" students are superior and more relevant than all other students. With this kind of stigma spreading, our students will lack confidence in themselves as the workforce of this country. We must embrace the interdependence that exists in all learning areas.

- E. Not involving student representatives in the interviewing of prospect educational staff is a gamble. Student representatives must have a say in the acquiring of educators.
- F. Employ leadership advisors and monitors to ensure sufficient enrichment and counsel to all in the educational sector.
- G. Reviewing the learning content timely is critical. What makes the European educational system superior? Because they educate their students using almost 70% of the local content .They are not fascinated about knowing much about other countries as we are yet they live room for open-minded content from other countries that is relevant to their educational policy.
- H. Celebrate the learning styles of the African child. The African child owes the British child nothing at all then why must we educate our African the same way that a British is educated? If the African child learns like a British child then there wouldn't a need for either of them to learn from one another.
- I. Export our languages by letting the African teacher to teach IsiZulu in Britain just we have allowed the British to teach us their language. This to avoid the notion of colonial hierarchy.

6. Creating new business

Growth in the business sector can be achieved if we can be able to implement the following:

- A. Enable dominating producers through a government subsidizing initiative to export at least 50% of their local produce so that new entry producers can acquire business locally.
- B. The government prior to giving mining rights to investors must instate a clause in the agreement that states that the investors are to pay a certain percentage towards the refilling of the mine with natural waste once mining in that particular area is completed.
- C. We must increase the rate at which we export crafts, products, skills and entertaining gifts rendered by our people.
- D. Township tourism must expand provided we create and rediscover relevant historical marks that will cause tourists to flock into our country.
- E. Restructure the tendering process in a way that it creates mid-term employment and rotational tendering opportunities for upcoming businesses. Divide the project into small portions in order to enforce supplier specialization. It would preferably be best for the state to provide the workforce by hiring various HR companies.

- F. Loaning of progressive stock brokers and senior traders by the state. Require by law that senior traders with 3 years of experience are to train and fund junior traders according to their stated capacity. Stock brokers that have been existing for more than five years are liable to open trading academies.
- G. Discourage the extensive use of technological processes to speed up production by monitoring production levels and charging offending producers monetarily.
- H. The government must keep 90% its expenditure locally and if the government decides to import certain things, they must do that through local consulting companies.
- I. Introduce taxing on foreign-owned SMME's , obligate foreign-owned SMME's to buy production goods locally.
- J. Sharing of land for commercial purposes is critical.

6.1. State-owned enterprises

Invest in foreign sector-aligned production businesses by selling considerable amount of shares at high prices to all foreign investors not just Americans and Chinese.

6.2 Foreign investors

All foreign companies to own 65% share of their companies in SA on the basis that they hire 100% of our local people and that 35% of their companies' shares should be sold to ordinary South Africans.

6.3 Infrastructure

The government must begin to lease and sell out unused properties that are just incurring unnecessary maintenance expenses to the young private sector players. On that point again to be able to purchase private property that can be beneficial to the economy.

We must avoid using the same construction companies for national projects regardless of the years of trusted service; we must rotate government expenditure within all economic players. These major construction companies must be liable by law to share 60% of their government granted projects with upcoming SMME's in construction.

6.4 Technological innovations

We need to be careful of making adopted technological processes absolute before the agreed on period especially if we don't have adjustment policies in place .

7. Health care our priority

The health care sector is most neglected by the state in terms of it being monitored. Our regional hospitals are poorly maintained and the staffs are unethical to the core. We have hired people who make a living in health care by killing lives in all possible ways.

7.1 Hospital maintenance

It will not help us to have the state of the art technology in decaying buildings, poor sanitations and jungle-like yards.

7.2 The staff

80% of the nursing staff show no passion for their work so much that watching patients die has become a habit. Some are even intentionally killing critical patients as per agreement with dominating funeral parlours. 70% of doctors are concerned about the money they make in their private surgeries by stealing government-paid hours and supplies. And yes! The ever-late emergency services.

7.3 The equipment

The shortage of medical equipment due the fraudulency within the health-care supply chain is evident. Using a means of technology to track down stock doesn't guarantee anti-professional theft.

7.4 The nutritional grant

Nutritional practioners in all government hospitals must prescribe a nutritional authorizing number to patients cannot afford the proper nutritional products that are required for their patient's treatment that is redeemable from any government endorsed SMME supermarket, shop and farm.

7.5 Pro-active research

It is key for us to task medical researchers into every province to monitor what our people are really consuming.

8. Moral regeneration

The need for clarified beliefs not just common believes is key for moral regeneration. Young people need to be given a choice of practical conviction. Spiritual health is the drive behind impactful revolutions, the very drive that creates the common ground for progressive unity. Why? Here a man learns what is too much for him, what less for him is and what is enough for him. It is the essence of convicted character that enables better relations with others.

We must introduce the measures of character nationally.

What is Character?

1. Character is knowing what to do especially when you have done what you were not supposed to do.
2. Character is applying virtue to all kinds of pressures.
3. Character is doing everything from a willing mind and a pure heart.
4. Character is the ability to be honest to God, others and yourself.
5. Character is love expressed.

You need to understand the three C's of your life

1. You are capable.
2. You have a capacity.
3. You need to be compatible.

It is not enough to be capable. It is enough to know your capacity and it is great to be compatible in order to finish the job well.

Capability speaks to the varieties of your abilities. Capacity speaks to your withstanding power, in all essence it is asking the question of how much can you handle? What is your breaking point?

Compatibility speaks about how well you can complement those of a similar or different gift to yours, it also speaks about how well others can others complement you. It address well those who need your gift to fulfil a particular function that enhances their vision and missions to the fulfilment of the overall objective.

WE MUST BUILD HEALTHY TEAMS

1. We take the fall together because we need to rise together.
2. We confront what's wrong and we preserve what right with our own life examples.
3. We only take side with what is right not the person who is right or wrong.
4. We hold one another accountable.
5. We forgive one another.
6. We help one another up always.
7. We refrain from gossip and unnecessary arguments.
8. We act as meditators at all times.
9. We learn what we don't know and we teach what we know.
10. We embrace one another.
11. We encourage and help one another towards academic excellence.
12. We don't crush idea— we build from each one.
13. We respect one another.

14. We make the best out of the worst life offers.
15. We lead by example.
16. We are responsible.
17. We are confidential.
18. We are versatile
19. We are reliable and trustworthy.
20. We trust the Lord to do all things.
21. We are generous.
22. We are good collectors.
23. We are sacrificial in nature.
24. We are convicted to the cause of serving everyone wholeheartedly.
25. We are problem solvers.
26. We set godly trends.
27. We have positive attitudes.
28. We are agents of change, prisoners of hope and believers of a victorious beginning.
29. We are armed with wisdom to disarm foolishness.

30. We celebrate our uniqueness.

Implementations:

1. We must challenge inactive beliefs that sabotage the motive of nation-building, beliefs that scatter and encourage divisiveness,
2. We need to hold spiritual service providers accountable for the misrepresentation of their beliefs in society.
3. We propose an accountability structure that will have a way to track the impact enforced forced by religious organisations especially pertaining the youth in Middelburg.
4. Mental support structures comprised of life coaching, motivational speakers and mentorship
5. Mind stimulating events need to be accessible and a norm.

SHALL THE YOUNG LEADERS OF TODAY BE ALIVE TOMORROW?

Vandalizing the structures

That houses their empowerment

Despising those that correct them

With references

Of merciful experiences

Oh! I weep dearly for the young

Leaders of today

Shall they live to embrace

Tomorrow?

The decisions they make are sabotageous

The influences they

Are attracted to

Are a disguise of hell

That make them disciples of satan

That spit profound verborosities

Shall the young leaders of today be alive tomorrow?

Inspired by a past of unforgiving brutality

They aspire in it today

The future is weeping

Africa has been stripped of her

Precious yet expensive garments

Her nakedness is no longer sacred

She is sick

And the young leaders dare

To watch her die!

I mourn for the dreamers

That will dream no more

I mourn for the missionaries

Who will never begin their missions

I mourn for the consciences

That are caged in compromise

For the characters

That are conquered by conformity

Again I ask

Shall the young leaders of today be alive tomorrow?

Look at them

Cry for them

As they waste their never to be youth

Brilliant speakers

With destroying hands

With their very hands they too

Wipe out themselves

With harmful habits

From harmful actions

From enticing death-wrapped thoughts

Shall the young leaders of today be alive tomorrow?

Slowly drowning in

This ocean of deception

In this once in a never life

Like mushrooms

They suck on the green pastures

Lead by men that are never headed

No wonder these aged men

Sleep with their own daughters

Leaving their wives to tango

With their never headed sons

What CONNECTING incest is this

Shall the young leaders of today be alive tomorrow?

They will die

With their knowledge

They will die

From their mockery towards wisdom

They will die

From their lack of repentance

Yes from their unbelief

They will certainly perish

Shall the young leaders of today be alive tomorrow?
